Capitalism in crisis - Marx was right

Socialism 2008

Come and hear the case for socialism - www.socialism2008.net

Saturday 8 and Sunday 9 November 2008
A weekend of socialist discussion and debate

Nearest tube: Euston or Goodge Street
Registration opens at 11am at ULU.

Sessions take place at the University of London Union (ULU) and the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), both on Malet Street.

RALLY FOR SOCIALISM
Saturday 8 November 5.30pm
Friends Meeting House, London
See page 12 for details

Why I’m going to Socialism 2008:

Faith McDonagh, Lewisham NUT
I went last year. All the predictions the Socialist Party made last year about the economic crisis have happened. I’m really looking forward to this year. The Socialist Party’s analysis has never been more compelling.

Len McClure, Union Health Service Group Executive
I’m coming to Socialism 2008 as part of the urgent and heroic fight for a mass, organised, independent political voice for the millions of public sector workers and their families.

Iain Dalton, Bangor Socialist Students
The list of international speakers looks excellent. There are activists coming from Greece, and even China to tell us about the socialist movement there.

Mike Brooks, Watfordshire MT
I’m coming to Socialism 2008 to meet people who share a similar ideology of fighting in a better world without capitalism, and to understand more about socialist revolution as a means to get there.

Greg Ranson, Socialist Party LGBT group convener
Because I want to hear the Chinese activist speak about the struggles of workers in his country. These are not often reported in the capitalist media, but the future of our planet could turn on them.

Why are we going to Socialism 2008?

I’m coming to Socialism 2008 to meet people who share a similar ideology of fighting in a better world without capitalism, and to understand more about socialist revolution as a means to get there.

Closing session

How can we fight for a working class political voice?

Speakers include: Mark Serwotka, PCS general secretary; Socialist Party councillor Dave Nellist, CNWP national chair; Hannah Sell, deputy general secretary of the Socialist Party; a representative from Respect; and two representatives from the Labour Representation Committee.

This discussion forum is hosted by the Campaign for a New Workers’ Party as part of Socialism 2008

3pm-4.30pm Saturday 9 November 2008
Logan Hall, Institute of Education, London WC1

Extra meetings

First time at Socialism?
This will be a short introduction to the running of the weekend, to give you a chance to ask questions and help make sure you get the most possible out of the weekend.
1.30 - 2pm Saturday 8 November, Room 101, University of London Union.